THE LATEST AND GREATEST STAGE SUCCESS BY CLYDE FITCH

"The City" is the story of the lure and lust of the crowded places, where the battle is to the strong and the race to the swift.

In "The City" men and women develop their own weakness. Midst the clash and crash of human passions in the Great Town, the ancient doctrine of the sins of the fathers is visited to its full extent upon the heads of the children.

ORGANIZE NEW COMPANY HERE

Concern with Valuable Coal Lands in Somerset County Finds Most of its Incorporators in Gettysburg.

With a capital stock of $200,000 and practically all the incorporators residents of Gettysburg, the Castleman River Smokeless Coal Company was formally organized here on Thursday afternoon.

These officers were chosen: W. G. Barnheisel, Hagerstown, president; G. W. Crowe, Uniontown, vice president; John H. Crowe, Gettysburg, secretary and treasurer; W. F. Oswald, Gettysburg, general manager. The first three officers named constitute the board of directors for the first year.

The main office of the company will be located at Confluence, Pa., the temporary office at Gettysburg. The company at the present time controls 3000 acres of land in Somerset County, bearing the famous C Prime smokeless coal. It is entirely a virgin tract and has at no time been worked. The vein contained on the tract is the one which has brought wealth and fame to Somerset County and is considered by coal operators to be the best steaming coal that comes from the county.

This tract also contains two other seams which have not been developed. They are known as the A and B seams which are recognized as a far more superior coal than the C Prime coal which the company will operate at the start.

Operations on this tract will commence at once, and the capacity at the start will be from 500 to 600 tons per day. The output of the average Somerset County mine is from 200 to 300 tons per day, the maximum in the immediate vicinity being less than 400 tons. Mr. Oswald will at once assume active charge of the plant, but for the present will continue to hold his residence in Gettysburg.

The equipment at the mine will be of the latest modern type, coal being taken out with storage battery motors. The coal which the company will mine is in great demand by railroads on account of its smokeless qualities which make it particularly valuable for use inside of cities and in municipalities where there are smoke nuisance laws. There is accordingly a very ready market for the product not only on the part of railroads but also on the part of manufacturing plants located within city or borough limits.

This company will also lay out and build a thoroughly equipped community including residences, stores, light and water plants, and railway. Mr. Barnheisel, the president of this new concern, is vice president of Steffy and Findlay Inc., of Hagerstown, wholesale dealers in coal and building materials. He is a large real estate owner in that city, identified with a number of the leading industries, a director on three of his boards.

G. W. Crowe, the vice president, has been interested in coal operations in the western part of the state for the past thirty years and is thoroughly acquainted with conditions and the coal business in that part of the state generally. He is president of the Wheeling Center Coal and Coke Company.

John H. Crowe, before taking up his residence in Gettysburg five years ago, was connected with mining engineering work in the western part of the state.

Mr. Oswald was secretary, treasurer, and general manager of the Auburn Shale Brick Company for the past twelve years, severing his connection with that company April first to take up his new position. While he held his position with the brick company he was also engaged on his own account in the business of river dredging for coal which he carried on most successfully.

WILL REBUILD CEMETERY ROADS

Government Asks for Bids on Construction Work which will Provide Marked Improvement for the National Cemetery.

The driveway through the Soldiers' National Cemetery is to be entirely rebuilt with asphalt macadam. Bids have been asked for its reconstruction and the roadway, when completed, will very much resemble the type of that built on Broadway last fall. It will be 1800 feet in length.

The present road is to be dug down to the hard foundation on which it was built and on this there will be placed crushed stone to the depth of two and one-half inches, which will be rolled in the usual way. It will then be treated with a bituminous binder, approximately one and one-half gallons being used to each square yard.

It will be given a coating of half inch chips, and further rolled. After the entire 1800 feet of surface has been brought to a true and even surface it will be treated with naphtha asphalt and a further coating of stone chips. Any black spots that appear on the roadway must be given more of these chips until the whole thing presents a uniform appearance.

A number of firms and individuals have been given copies of the specifications and blanks for bids and it is expected that the contract will be awarded very shortly after the day announced for bids to be opened.

The driveways in the cemetery, in spite of the greatest care taken on the part of the employees there, have been in bad shape for some time, and the improvement is one of the most necessary ones that the government has announced here in recent years.

SECTION MEN STRIKE

Made Demand for More Pay and, Being Refused, Promptly Quit.

Two squads of section hands on the Western Maryland main line, between Blue Ridge Summit and Edgemont, who had been on strike for the past few days, have again returned to work, the grievances having been adjusted, or put in process of adjustment in a manner satisfying the men.

The strike followed a demand for increase of pay. It seems that recently every department of the service has been given an increase, quite a considerable advance having been allowed engineers and trainmen. The section men deemed that it was their turn to come in for their proper share of "prosperity" and so made the demand for more pay. Being refused they threw down picks and shovels Monday and took a holiday.

NO SITE CHOSEN

Cavalry Camp Location is not Announced by War Department.

That no place has yet been selected for the combined cavalry camp of Regulars and militia this summer is indicated in the announcement this morning of the dates and locations for the Pennsylvania Guard encampments. It is stated merely that the cavalry will go to the place to be designated by the War Department. Gettysburg, it was felt, had a good claim to the camp until a few weeks ago when it was stated definitely by high authorities that this place could not be chosen.

POLICY HOLDERS ARE ASSESSED

Must Help Pay Debts of Involved Mutual Concern. Bankruptcy Proceedings now under Way. Make up $30,000.

A number of Adams County policy holders are concerned in the assessment levied by George Neff Esq., referee in the bankruptcy proceedings of the York County Livestock Insurance Company, to meet the debt of the company which is said to be about $30,000.

The concern went into bankruptcy proceedings the beginning of the year and a number of horse and cattle owners were caught, among whom possibly the heaviest loser will be O. L. M. Houck, the Hanover baker, who had about forty head of horses insured against death or injury.

The company, according to one of their former agents, had been in a bad condition for some time. It was a mutual concern and the assessments levied each year were not sufficient to afford the outlay of expenses, for which reason a number of patrons withdrew.

There is some indication of trouble in collecting the final settlement money from share holders, the latter refusing in some instances to pay out so much money for practically nothing. However, it is stated that, as the company was a mutual concern, the shareholders will be liable for their share of the debt.

The York County Livestock Insurance Company has been in operation in York, Adams, Lancaster, and Dauphin counties for over ten years, having the head office in York.

ARRESTED MOTORIST

Police Take in Hand Man who Ran down Dr. Hinkle.

Details of the automobile accident in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, last Sunday when Dr. E. D. Hinkle, formerly of Littlestown, was very seriously hurt, have just been received here.

Dr. Hinkle and a friend, Dr. Lang, were walking in the park and in crossing a railroad were run down by two automobiles. Dr. Lang escaped injury but Dr. Hinkle was hit by one of them and dragged quite a distance before the machine was stopped.

Two park guards who witnessed the accident rushed to the scene and picked up Dr. Hinkle, placing him in the automobile, which ran him down. But the man claimed he could not get his machine started and another auto was pressed into service and Dr. Hinkle rushed to the Presbyterian Hospital. Just as this auto got under way the man who ran down Dr. Hinkle sped away but the guards had his license number. He was placed under arrest and held awaiting the outcome of Dr. Hinkle's injuries.

At the hospital it was found that Dr. Hinkle had three ribs broken, a fractured knee cap on one leg and a large piece of flesh torn from the other, his face badly disfigured, and his whole body bruised. X-ray pictures were taken Monday in order to ascertain the extent of the internal injuries.

MANY ENJOYED GERMAN PLAYS

Gettysburg's German Chorus also Scores Heavily. Attraction Draws Good Crowd to Brua Chapel for First Appearance.

A novelty for Gettysburg audiences was provided at Brua Chapel Thursday evening by the German players, under the direction of Waldemar Alfredo, who presented two popular comedies in the German language. The auditorium was filled with an enthusiastic audience. From the beginning of the entertainment to the end the players kept the spectators in laughter.

Between the presentations of the comedies, "Er ist nicht eifersuechtig," and "Einer muss heiraten," German songs were given by Frl. Elsa v. Philippbaer, a member of the company, and by the German chorus of the college under the direction of Professor Behle.

Fraulein Philippbaer rendered with great vocal skill a number of German folk songs. Her articulation was such that the content of the songs was not difficult to be understood by those in the audience familiar with the language. Especially well received was her rendition of "Anna Marie," a popular love song which is being sung by soldiers at the front.

The German chorus of the college made its initial appearance at this time. With Professor Behle swaying the baton, they sang "Aus der Jugendzeit," and in response to loud applause, "Dankebet." Despite disconcerting clamor from their fellow students, the members of the new musical organization gave their selections in a way that promises well for future success. There has not for some time been any organized singing of German songs at the school.

Members of the Pennsylvania German Society of the College acted as ushers. The plays were brought here at the suggestion of the German department of the school, and with the support of members of the German classes.

WHAT IT COSTS

Think Blue Ridge League will Spend $70,000 this Year.

The Baltimore Sun speaks as follows on the finances of the Blue Ridge League: "Last year it cost approximately $15,000 a month to operate the six clubs, including all expenses. This year, with an increased salary limit and an extended schedule, it is estimated that the total operating expenses will be close to $18,000 a month or about $70,000 for the four months of play. Of this amount approximately $30,000 will be paid in salaries to the players and other employees of the six clubs, the other $40,000 being expended in traveling expenses, hotel bills, upkeep of plants and necessary paraphernalia. The salary limit for the 13 men allowed each club, after the playing season starts, is approximately $1,200 per month, including the manager. Some of the players, especially pitchers, are paid $100 to $125 a month, while others receive as low as $75 a month, the average being about $90.

FAIRFIELD MAN IN LIMELIGHT

Much Traveled County Resident Says he Has Solved Gasoline High Price Difficulty. Reticent about the Details.

Automobile owners who have had visions of mortgaging their homes in order to purchase gasoline to operate their cars need have no further fears, if the plans of James S. Diehl, formerly of Fairfield, prove to be successful.

Diehl has no mysterious liquid or tabloid substitutes for gasoline, but he claims to have invented a spring and weight motor which will completely revolutionize the production and transmission of power. Since he has not as yet secured any patents on his devices, he will not at this time make any statement concerning the details of his designs.

He does, however, divulge the fact that the secret of the efficiency of his machinery lies in the proper application of the laws of the lever to the spring or the weight as an agent of motion. Diehl, who is a carpenter by trade, says that he has been working on his designs for the past 40 years. He states that his first conceptions of the possibilities of the perfection of such a piece of mechanism came to him in a dream when he was a boy.

Diehl claims that he is able to perfect a spring which while being small enough to place under the seat of an automobile, will still be powerful enough to operate the machine. Pedestrians will be interested to know that a vehicle built in accordance with Diehl's plan would in all probability never exceed the speed limit fixed by the laws of the state. On the other hand, the chauffeur would no longer have to worry with missing cylinders, poor gas, flooded carburetors and the other thousand and one things that can happen to an engine of the combustion type.

By compounding the leverage of a machine in a manner similar to that in which steam is compounded, it would be possible, the inventor says, to produce machinery that would lift practically any weight. One design of Diehl's is for a machine which would elevate a weight of 100,000 pounds with ease by applying the power at the bottom instead of at the top, the method used in hoisting at the present time.

During the past 25 years, Diehl, who was until recently a resident of Fairfield, has visited every state in the Union, as well as Canada, Alaska and Mexico. He says that he fell into the clutches of a clique of "shyster" lawyers and patent thieves, about eight years ago, while attempting to secure a patent on an improved fly trap. He is at present undecided regarding the disposition of his spring motor, but expresses a willingness to talk business with any person interested in his invention.

GERARD GIVEN U-BOAT REPLY

Germany Makes Concessions on Submarine Policy.

SECRETARY LANSING SILENT

Officials Fear Conditions Attached to Germany's Answer May Not Satisfy Washington.

Berlin, May 5.—James W. Gerard, the American ambassador to Germany, has called on Herr von Jagow, the German foreign minister, to receive from him Germany's reply to the American note concerning submarine warfare.

Considerable perturbation is expressed over the effect which concessions may have on public opinion here.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor, undoubtedly will have the great mass of the people with him in a desire to avoid a breach in the diplomatic relations with the United States so far as can be done without sacrificing the principle enunciated in the German manifesto of February 8.

The chancellor, with Admiral von Holtzendorff, head of the naval general staff; Dr. Karl Helfferich, secretary of the treasury, and other participants in the council at headquarters, returned to Berlin.

The note with its explanation of the German attitude toward the British "starvation" policy, will be one of the longest diplomatic documents of the war.

Conditions May Force Break.

Washington, May 5.—Germany's manifesto of February 8, to the principles of which press despatches from Berlin indicate the imperial government adheres in its reply to the American note, is assumed by officials of the state department to be the memorandum of that date declaring that in future all armed merchant ships of belligerent nationality would be considered warships, subject to attack without warning.

In spite of Secretary Lansing's flat refusal to discuss the contents of a despatch received from Ambassador Gerard it became known that in view of such information as has been received, official and unofficial, officials of the government fear that Germany has attached conditions to her reply that may make it impossible for the United States to continue diplomatic relations.

In a memorandum prepared at the direction of President Wilson and made public a few days after the despatch of the last note to Germany, Secretary Lansing restated the American attitude toward armed merchantmen, declaring that they should be considered and treated as peaceful vessels if their armament was carried and used for defense only.

While officials would not comment on the Berlin reference to the manifesto of February 8, they reiterated that the president was prepared to stand unalterably by the position taken in the last note. The note, which was designed to permit of no argument, gave notice that unless Germany immediately declared and effected an abandonment of present methods of submarine warfare against passenger and freight-carrying vessels, the United States could not do otherwise than sever diplomatic relations.

AIR RAID ON OSTEND

Allied Aeroplanes Bombard Belgian Coast City.

Berlin, May 5.—The German war office statement says: "Enemy aeroplanes bombarded Ostend. The only damage done was in the garden of the royal castle."

One of the machines was shot down near Middlekerke. A French officer who was in the machine was killed. "West of Lieven, two enemy aeroplanes were shot to earth by our high angle guns and machine guns. In the neighborhood of Vaux, two French aircraft were put out of action by our aviators."

"Our airships attacked the railway establishment at Minsk and Melodetchno (Russian front). An air attack was made upon the railway junction at Luninets. Good results were obtained at every point of attack."

Stamps for New Irish Republic.

Dublin, May 5.—Postage stamps prepared by the short-lived Irish Republic have been found, ready for issue. They are printed in the republican colors—green, white and orange—with inset pictures of the three Manchester martyrs, Larkin, O'Brien and Allen, on a shamrock leaf. Beneath is a harp and the words "God Save Ireland."

Baby Burns to Death.

Chester, Pa., May 5.—Using matches as playthings resulted in Sophia Ordeka, three years old, being burned so severely that she died in the Chester hospital. The child had been watching her mother light the gas stove to prepare breakfast, and when her parent was not looking scratched one of the matches on the wall. Her dress was ignited. Hearing her child's screams, Mrs. Ordeka rushed into the room to find her a pillar of fire.

REPORT CIVILIANS ARE LEAVING METZ

Amsterdam Hears Residents Are Quitting Place.

London, May 5.—Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent telegraphs that information which is regarded as trustworthy has been received there that Metz is being evacuated by the civil population.

(Metz, the capital of Lorraine, and a city of about 60,000, is rated as one of the strongest fortifications of the world. It is about fifteen miles north of the fighting line, and forty miles east of Verdun.)

The advance of the French in the district of Dead Man's Hill on the Verdun front, was continued, the Paris office announced. Gains made Wednesday were increased and consolidated.

Berlin officially announces that the French have obtained a foothold in one of the German advance posts south of Dead Man's Hill.

As a consequence of the French artillery preparations at Dead Man's Hill the Paris statement says, two German soldiers were killed. They were the sole survivors of the men in their trench. Elsewhere west of the Meuse there was active fighting with artillery. An engagement with grenades occurred in Avocourt wood. In the region of Vaux, east of the Meuse, there was an artillery encounter. French artillery destroyed a munitions depot at Grande Dune, Belgium.

A French aviator Wednesday, flying in the vicinity of Douaumont, met in the air two German aeroplanes and engaged them in combat. One of the enemy machines fell to the ground while the other fled, the French statement says.

Another contingent of Russian soldiers arrived at Marseilles and was received with notable military and popular receptions. The troops proceeded to the camp at Mirabeau.

ZEPPELIN WRECKED

One of Squadron That Raided England Meets With Disaster Off Norway.

London, May 5.—At the same time that official announcement was made that thirty-eight casualties resulted from the Zeppelin raid on Tuesday night in northeast England and southeast Scotland, advices were received from Norway that the Zeppelin L-20, one of the airships that took part in the raid, had been wrecked near Stavanger, on the south Norwegian coast.

Of the sixteen men on board the L-20, all were rescued and interned by the Norwegian authorities.

One of the crew said the Zeppelins were forced by gun fire and adverse weather to cut their attacks short, and that owing to a lack of benzine, the L-20 was unable to keep in company with the other raiders and was driven eastward by a strong wind and hurled against a mountain side.

MINERS RATIFY WAGE PACT

A RISING VOTE WAS TAKEN

Charge of Attempting to Coerce Delegates Into Adoption of Agreement Brought Caustic Reply From Mr. White.

Pottsville, May 5.—The agreement between the anthracite mine operators and the United Mine Workers of America was ratified by a vote of 407 to 117 at the tri-district convention following the reading and explanation of the agreement.

A standing vote was taken after a speech by President White, who told the delegates that it was their duty to either accept or reject the agreement, and not to refer it back to the locals for a referendum vote.

The new wage scale among other concessions, provides for increased wages, an eight-hour day and recognition of the union. It takes the place of the agreement which expired on March 31 and will be retroactive to that date.

While the agreement fails to include the check-off system and the closed shop, it includes a recognition of the union, which provides that the contract shall be signed by the district presidents of the United Mine Workers and the national president. The eight-hour day, with pay for nine hours, and a three per cent increase for all now working nine hours and a seven per cent increase for those who have been working eight hours or less, is considered by the miners as the greatest victory of the agreement.

All hoisting engineers working on a nine-hour basis, and who will be continued on nine hours, will receive an increase of seven per cent. Where three shifts of hoisting engineers are employed, the third engineer will receive the same pay as the first engineer and a three per cent increase.

A new rate is adopted for the payment of machine mine mining and the minimum rate fixed is now $3.20 per day for the miner, $2.70 for the machine runner, and $2.34 for the laborer and besides this other agreements are entered into for the first time to regulate this new method of coal mining.

During the debate a delegate arose to inform the chair that delegates have been circulating the statement that the presidents, meaning Messrs. White, Dempsey, Kennedy and Matthews, are trying to coerce the delegates into the adoption of the agreement. This brought a caustic reply from Mr. White, who said:

"We have agreed to recommend the ratification of this agreement." He asked:

"What kind of representatives do you think we are, after we have come to an agreement with the operators, to come back here to you to apologize for what we have done? We have given our advice and opinions and have told you what we have done in this work, and it is now up to you to ratify the agreement. It is with you and with your conscience we have done our duty. We have given you every chance to talk, and we propose to have that say as we have a right to do."

On the price of powder a number of complaints were made, but the complaints were told these were violations of the old contract and should be taken before the conciliation board. Mr. Kennedy told the convention that if new powder contracts had been made instead of continuing the present rates it would have resulted in a great increase to the miners as the war has raised the price of all explosives. It is said that in the Panther Creek valley alone a new contract for explosives would result in an increased cost to the miners of $100,000 a year.

SILK WORKERS GET RAISE

Six Concerns in Easton Increase Up to Ten Per Cent.

Easton, Pa., May 5.—The Simon Silk company, has granted a nine-hour day and an increase of ten per cent to its 1200 employees.

The action of the company averts a strike, as the employees had made demands.

The Haycock-Cronmeyer Silk company announced it had granted its 700 employees a nine-hour day and an increase in wages.

The Northampton Silk company, with two mills here, also granted its 300 employees a nine-hour day and an increase in wages.

The Robbins Silk company also granted its 100 employees a nine-hour day and an increase in wages.

Want Vast Sum for Foreign Missions.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 5.—The income of the Methodist Episcopal church available for missionary work in foreign countries would amount to more than $10,000,000 annually if each member would contribute weekly a sum equivalent to a single street car fare, according to a report submitted to the general conference by Dr. Earl L. Taylor, corresponding secretary of the board of foreign missions. Discussion of church activities in other lands was a special order of business.

MEXICAN AGREEMENT TO GO THROUGH

Wilson Approves Proposition For Pursuit of Villa.

Washington, May 5.—The American government is ready to accept in its main points the agreement for the future pursuit of Francisco Villa and his bandits drawn up by General Alvaro Obregon, the Carranza minister of war, and General Hugh L. Scott, representing the United States.

This was decided at a conference between President Wilson and Secretary of War Baker.

Formal announcement of the position of the United States will not be given until General Carranza has had opportunity to pass on the report submitted to him by General Obregon.

When that is done, another conference between General Obregon and General Scott will be held on the border, and the negotiations formally will be concluded.

While no official information has been received from General Carranza officials take it for granted that General Obregon would not have made an agreement which would not have been acceptable to his chief.

The agreement provides for the co-operation of American and Carranza troops in clearing northern Mexico of bandits. Mexican railroads will be utilized for the transportation of supplies for the American troops. While no time limit is set for the withdrawal of the American troops from Mexico this will be done as soon as there are definite indications that American border towns are no longer in danger of raids.

SLIGHTED M'ADOO

His Reception at Trinidad Brings an Apology From British Envoy.

Washington, May 5.—Colonel Roosevelt's reception at Trinidad during his recent West Indian trip, quite eclipsed that arranged for Secretary McAdoo, who came along a little later.

So said the British ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, who paid a visit to President Wilson and expressed regret that through a misunderstanding among the local officials the secretary of the treasury had not been received with ceremony appropriate to his position.

British claims learned to their amazement that the governor of Trinidad had outdone himself to make a demonstration for Colonel Roosevelt but apparently was little impressed with the coming of Secretary McAdoo, who was returning from the meeting of the Pan-American high commission at Buenos Aires.

The ambassador's explanation closed the incident, if it was one.

ANTI-WAR LETTERS FOLLOWS TELEGRAMS

Notes Pour in Upon Members of Congress.

Washington, May 5.—Printed form letters protesting against any step which may lead to war with Germany began pouring in by the thousands upon members of congress as the sequel to the telegraph propaganda which swamped the capital and the telegraph companies last week.

Even the names of the congressmen were printed on the envelope, and everything gave evidence the letters had been prepared by thousands and required only written signatures.

Senator Hustling, who attacked the propaganda in the senate and conferred with President Wilson to find if there was not some way by which the department of justice could uncover its source, received letters which, he said, added evidence to his charge that the American embargo conference was behind the movement.

LORIMER ACQUITTED

Former U. S. Senator Not Guilty of Conspiracy to Wreck Bank.

Chicago, May 5.—William Lorimer, former United States senator, was acquitted by a jury of the charge of conspiracy to wreck the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank while president of that institution. The jury was out a little more than six hours.

The jury in its verdict held that Lorimer had no part in any violation of the banking laws in connection with the career of the La Salle street bank or of the criminal laws in the bank's failure, and that he had no knowledge of such violations.

On October 22, 1914, two years after the La Salle street bank was converted from a national to a state institution, William Lorimer, C. B. Munday, H. W. Huttig and a number of officers and employees of the parent bank and its subsidiaries were indicted by the Cook county grand jury, three separate indictments being returned against Lorimer, Munday and Huttig.

HEART DISEASE A CHILD MENACE

New Problem Presented to Those Who Preserve Health.

TUBERCULOSIS DECREASING

Another Enemy Creeps Up Behind as Great Battle Is Being Won—Heart
Trouble Leaves Child Handicapped
For Life—Home Care Better Than Hospitals For Such Cases.

With heart disease spreading as tuberculosis is being curbed physicians and social workers are planning preventive work among children to cope with the rising death rate. An article on this menace and what experimental work has shown to be desirable to ward curbing it as prepared for the Survey, an organization whose purpose is to investigate the facts of living and working conditions and to suggest means for social advance, is as follows:

Apparently while we have been fighting one enemy face to face another has stolen upon us from behind. New York has reduced her deaths from tuberculosis from 421 per hundred thousand in 1870 to 169 in 1914, but during the same time her deaths from heart disease have increased from 74 to 169.

Repeated in Other Cities.
The experience of New York is repeated in other cities. In Worcester, Mass., no less than 21.5 per cent of all deaths in the industrial population are caused by organic heart disease; 15.2 per cent is the proportion for the whole population of that city.

The situation, or, rather, the realization, has come upon us suddenly, and we are not equipped to deal with heart disease as we are with tuberculosis. Yet it is clear that we shall have to cope with it and devote to it the same study and the same persistent effort to get at underlying causes as we have given to tuberculosis ever since the eighties.

Several articles recently written for medical journals show how similar are the methods needed for the prevention and cure of heart disease to those we are familiar with the case of tuberculosis. In both it is in childhood that preventive work is most needed; in both the symptoms are slight and latent, and the treatment must be prolonged and persisted in after all signs of real trouble have disappeared. Both depend greatly upon environment for cure, and in both home care is beginning to take the place of institutional care.

Leave Child Handicapped.
Both leave the child handicapped and needing vocational training in some occupation which will not make too great demands on his strength.

The Massachusetts General hospital, Boston, has been making an interesting experiment in the home care of children with heart disease and with diseases which threaten the heart, such as chorea and rheumatism. At first these children were kept in the hospital for weeks and even months, but the results were discouraging. When they went home not only improved, but usually looking in the best of health. It was impossible to make the parents believe that the greatest care was still necessary. So releases came, and the children returned to the clinic sometimes in a worse condition than before.

The physicians realized that "heart disease is a social disease and must be treated socially. The child and his family must be educated, his environment must be altered and adapted to his limitations, and he must be kept under supervision for a long period, not merely until he has recovered from the acute symptoms."

Home Care Bust.
So in 1911 a social worker was secured to supervise the home treatment of these children. The results have been so gratifying that home care has been substituted for hospital care for the acutely sick.

It is not nearly so much danger as if the child has been in his home from the beginning and his have had the care of him during sickness and have gone through tedious process of nursing to health. There is no need of adjusting him to his old environment, and there is much less difficulty in adjusting him to his new environment. He is really ill than when he is well. When the child is well, boarding the child in his family has been rather a sedition him to an

INDUSTRIES ORGANIZE

Adams County in Third District for Preparedness Campaign.

At a meeting of the State directors of the organization for Industrial Preparedness, this week, it was decided to divide the state into nine districts and appoint representative committees of five members each for each district.

In the district of which Adams county is a part, are Lancaster, Lebanon, Dauphin, York, Franklin, Cumberland, Perry, Juniata, Mifflin and Fulton counties.

Pennsylvania being one of the largest, if not the largest, war munition manufacturing state in the Union is the reason given by the directors for the "sub-divisions in the Commonwealth being made. Another object also is to get the reports as accurately and promptly as possible.

The plans of the Pennsylvania directors are to be carried out with little or practically no expense. Volunteers will do most of the work, and members of the great engineering societies will devote their time and energy to the project. The work is to be put on an "America First" basis, and patriotism will play a large part in the collection of the statistics in this state.

All the information obtained will be absolutely confidential. Lists of statistics will be compiled and sent to the Naval Consulting Board in New York City, and by this board will be turned over to the Federal government. Then national statistics will be compiled and the facts and figures will be used as a basis for the study of the resources of the entire country.

Blank forms will be furnished the owners of each manufacturing plant in the State. It will be the duty of members of these subcommittees to see that these forms are promptly and properly filled out in their districts. Field aides will assist with this work.

WILL MAKE INSPECTION

United States to Help Solve the Fish-way Problem.

The state department of fisheries Thursday gave out a statement that in a few days an investigation would be made at the McCall's Ferry dam in the Susquehanna river, and that this time the survey would be made not only by the state engineers but that the United States bureau of fisheries has agreed to send its engineers to help solve the problem. A conference to fix the date for the inspection and survey will be held in a day or two, when Nathan Buller, state commissioner of fisheries, will meet the United States authorities.

It was given out at Mr. Buller's office that on account of the fast disappearance of the shad, the department found it advisable to go the limit in trying to solve the problem, and it believes that it can be done.

WON FROM BUCKNELL

Old Rivals Taken into Camp in the Lucky Seventh.

Plenty of excitement attended Gettysburg's 3-2 victory over Bucknell on Nixon Field Thursday afternoon. No scoring was done until the seventh when a hit, a stolen base and a hit gave Bucknell their first tally.

In Gettysburg's half Peale, who had been pitching excellent ball, weakened and the orange and blue got busy. Mahaffie hit safely, Motter got a pass, and all were safe when Eves bunted, Levine scored Mahaffie on a sacrifice fly, Sheffer was passed and the bases were full again. Motter and Eves tallied when Hoar hit to Elliott who threw high to the plate and Baldt dropped the throw. Cockill replaced Peale, then, and there was no further scoring for Gettysburg.

In the ninth Elliott hit for three bases and scored on Miller's out at first. Hoar pitched a very heady game and had faultless support.

AFTER MANY YEARS

Crawled up Chimney and Escaped from Wall of Gettysburg Jail.

John Toms, who escaped from the Adams County jail several years ago, and has been at large ever since, has been caught by Sheriff Long, of Washington county, Md., who wanted him on a charge of breaking into a store near Hagerstown. Toms, it will be recalled, was in the local jail under the name of Lee. He made his escape by crawling up the outside of an old chimney onto the roof, and then to the jail wall, dropping down into the yard at the Wible home and making good his escape.

He and his brother are said to have been living in Maryland recently under the name of Snyder. Both were caught by Sheriff Long. They both bear unenviable reputations. At the time of Toms' escape here he was alleged to have stolen about 700 chickens in two weeks' time.

At the abandoned Toms' home there were found by the officers many batteries for automobiles, great quantities of merchandise including cloth for men's suits, gingham, fancy table covers and many other things. All this plunder was left there and the matter was put in the hands of Sheriff Stoner, of Carroll County.

IF YOU WERE PRESIDENT, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

Would you plunge the country into War? Would you sacrifice young men as food for cannon? Would you make wives widows? Would you make children orphans? Would you be responsible for a National Debt as the result of War, that could not be met for generations to come?

Or would you do as President Wilson has done: Preserve the rights of American citizenship wherever it may be; use every endeavor to keep the country at peace, which up to this time he has been successful in doing, and to keep the country enjoying an era of prosperity which it now has, greater than ever before in its history?

Mr. Brodbeck, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Representative in Congress, as a member of Congress, and he only served one term when it is always customary to return a Congressman, helped to enact the laws that have prevented financial panics; that have helped place the country on a basis to enjoy the prosperity that it now has.

As a member of the 63rd Congress Mr.

Brodbeck always made it a point not only to vote in the interests of the Country, but in the interest of the District which he represents, this District and if nominated and elected, he will do it again. He has demonstrated his absolute sincerity of purpose in standing by the President; he has demonstrated that he believes in looking after your interests from the fact that during the lengthy sessions of the 63rd Congress he made it a point to be in Washington attending to your business.

If you believe in standing by the President; if you believe in recognizing those who have stood by the President; if you wish to show your appreciation for their services, go to the Primary on May 16th and vote not only for Woodrow Wilson as the Democratic nominee for President, but also for Andrew R. Brodbeck for Representative in Congress. It is important that you should do this, not only for the Country's sake, but for your sake also.

SECRETARY LANSING SILENT

Officials Fear Conditions Attached to Germany's Answer May Not Satisfy Washington.

Berlin, May 5.—James W. Gerard, the American ambassador to Germany, has called on Herr von Jagow, the German foreign minister, to receive from him Germany's reply to the American note concerning submarine warfare.

Considerable perturbation is expressed over the effect which concessions may have on public opinion here.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor, undoubtedly will have the great mass of the people with him in a desire to avoid a breach in the diplomatic relations with the United States so far as can be done without sacrificing the principle enunciated in the German manifesto of February 8.

The chancellor, with Admiral von Holtzendorff, head of the naval general staff, Dr. Karl Helfferich, secretary of the treasury, and other participants in the council at headquarters, returned to Berlin.

The note with its explanation of the German attitude toward the British "starvation" policy, will be one of the longest diplomatic documents of the war.

Conditions May Force Break.

Washington, May 5.—Germany's manifesto of February 8, to the principles of which press despatches from Berlin indicate the imperial government adheres in its reply to the American note, is assumed by officials of the state department to be the memorandum of that date declaring that in future all armed merchant ships of belligerent nationality would be considered warships, subject to attack without warning.

In spite of Secretary Lansing's flat refusal to discuss the contents of a despatch received from Ambassador Gerard it became known that in view of such information as has been received, official and unofficial, officials of the government fear that Germany has attached conditions to her reply that may make it impossible for the United States to continue diplomatic relations.

In a memorandum prepared at the direction of President Wilson and made public a few days after the despatch of the last note to Germany, Secretary Lansing restated the American attitude toward armed merchant men, declaring that they should be considered and treated as peaceful vessels if their armament was carried and used for defense only.

While officials would not comment on the Berlin reference to the manifesto of February 8, they reiterated that the president was prepared to stand unalterably by the position taken in the last note. The note, which was designed to permit of no argument, gave notice that unless Germany immediately declared and effected an abandonment of present methods of submarine warfare against passenger and freight-carrying vessels, the United States could not do otherwise than sever diplomatic relations.

AIR RAID ON OSTEND

Allied Aeroplanes Bombard Belgian Coast City.

Berlin, May 5.—The German war office statement says:

"Enemy aeroplanes bombarded Ostend. The only damage done was in the garden of the royal castle. One of the machines was shot down near Middlekerke. A French officer who was in the machine was killed. 'West of Lieveen, two enemy aeroplanes were shot to earth by our high angle guns and machine guns. In the neighborhood of Vaux, two French aircraft were put out of action by our aviators.'

"Our airships attacked the railway establishment at Minsk and Melodetchno (Russian front). An air attack was made upon the railway junction at Luninetz. Good results were obtained at every point of attack."

Stamps for New Irish Republic.

Dublin, May 5.—Postage stamps prepared by the short-lived Irish Republic have been found, ready for issue. They are printed in the republican colors—green, white and orange—with inset pictures of the three Manchester martyrs, Larkin, O'Brien and Allen, on a shamrock leaf. Beneath is a harp and the words "God Save Ireland."

Baby Burns to Death.

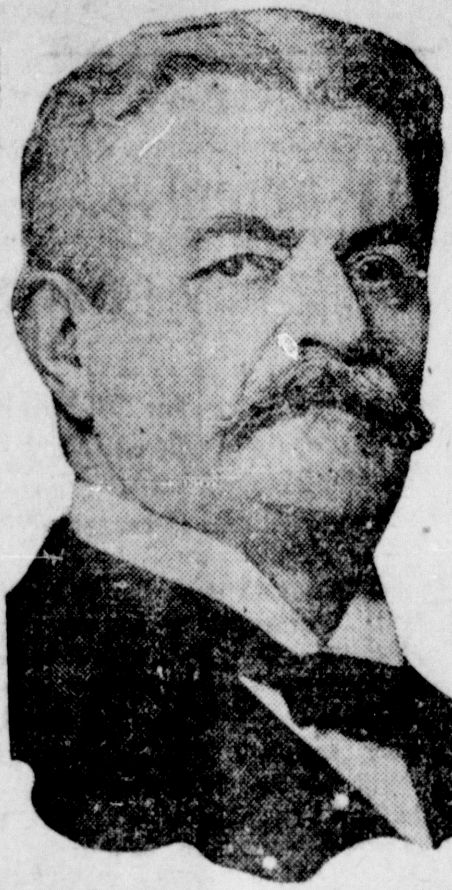

Chester, Pa., May 5.—Playing matches as playthings resulted in Sophia Ordeka, three years old, being burned so severely that she died in the Chester hospital. The child had been watching her mother light the gas stove to prepare breakfast, and when her parent was not looking scratched one of the matches on the wall. Her dress was ignited. Hearing her child's screams, Mrs. Ordeka rushed into the room to find her a pillar of fire.

REPORT CIVILIANS ARE LEAVING METZ

Amsterdam Hears Residents Are Quitting Place.

London, May 5.—Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent telegraphs that information which is regarded as trustworthy has been received there that Metz is being evacuated by the civil population.

(Metz, the capital of Lorraine, and a city of about 60,000, is rated as one of the strongest fortifications of the world. It is about fifteen miles north of the fighting line, and forty miles east of Verdun.)

The advance of the French in the district of Dead Man's Hill on the Verdun front, was continued, the Paris office announced. Gains made Wednesday were increased and consolidated.

Berlin officially announces that the French have obtained a foothold in one of the German advance posts south of Dead Man's Hill.

As a consequence of the French artillery preparations at Dead Man's Hill the Paris statement says, two German soldiers were killed, and the sole survivors of the men in their trench. Elsewhere west of the Meuse there was active fighting with artillery. An engagement with grenades occurred in Avocourt wood. In the region of Vaux, east of the Meuse, there was an artillery encounter. French artillery destroyed a munitions depot at Grande Dune, Belgium.

A French aviator Wednesday, flying in the vicinity of Douaumont, met in the air two German aeroplanes and engaged them in combat. One of the enemy machines fell to the ground while the other fled, the French statement says.

Another contingent of Russian soldiers arrived at Marseilles and was received with notable military and popular receptions. The troops proceeded to the camp at Mirabeau.

ZEPPELIN WRECKED

One of Squadron That Raided England Meets With Disaster Off Norway.

London, May 5.—At the same time that official announcement was made that thirty-eight casualties resulted from the Zeppelin raid on Tuesday night in northeast England and southeast Scotland, advices were received from Norway that the Zeppelin L-20, one of the airships that took part in the raid, had been wrecked near Stavanger, on the south Norwegian coast.

Of the sixteen men on board the L-20, all were rescued and interned by the Norwegian authorities.

One of the crew said the Zeppelins were forced by gun fire and adverse weather to cut their attacks short, and that owing to a lack of benzine, the L-20 was unable to keep in company with the other raiders and was driven eastward by a strong wind and hurled against a mountain side.

MINERS RATIFY WAGE PACT

A RISING VOTE WAS TAKEN

Charge of Attempting to Coerce Delegates Into Adoption of Agreement Brought Caustic Reply From Mr. White.

Pottsville, May 5.—The agreement between the anthracite mine operators and the United Mine Workers of America was ratified by a vote of 477 to 117 at the tri-district convention following the reading and explanation of the agreement.

A standing vote was taken after a speech by President White, who told the delegates that it was their duty to either accept or reject the agreement, and not to refer it back to the locals for a referendum vote.

The new wage scale among other concessions, provides for increased wages, an eight-hour day and recognition of the union. It takes the place of the agreement which expired on March 31 and will be retroactive to that date.

While the agreement fails to include the check-off system and the closed shop, it includes a recognition of the union, which provides that the contract shall be signed by the district presidents of the United Mine Workers and the national president. The eight-hour day, with pay for nine hours, and a three per cent increase for all now working nine hours and a seven per cent increase for those who have been working eight hours or less, is considered by the miners as the greatest victory of the agreement.

All hoisting engineers working on a nine-hour basis, and who will be continued on nine hours, will receive an increase of seven per cent. Where three shifts of hoisting engineers are employed, the third engineer will receive the same pay as the first engineer and a three per cent increase.

A new rate is adopted for the payment of machine mine mining and the minimum rate fixed is now $3.30 per day for the miner, $2.70 for the machine runner, and $2.34 for the laborer and besides this other agreements are entered into for the first time to regulate this new method of coal mining.

During the debate a delegate arose to inform the chair that delegates have been circulating the statement that the presidents, meaning Messrs. White, Dempsey, Kennedy and Matthews, are trying to coerce the delegates into the adoption of the agreement. This brought a caustic reply from Mr. White, who said:

"We have agreed to recommend the ratification of this agreement." He asked:

"What kind of representatives do you think we are, after we have come to an agreement with the operators, to come back here to you to apologize for what we have done? We have given our advice and opinions and have told you what we have done in this work, and it is now up to you to ratify the agreement. It is with you and with your conscience we have done our duty. We have given you every chance to talk, and we propose to have final say as we have a right to do."

On the price of powder a number of complaints were made, but the complainants were told these were violations of the old contract and should be taken before the conciliation board. Mr. Kennedy told the convention that if new powder contracts had been made instead of continuing the present rates it would have resulted in a great increase to the miners as the war has raised the price of all explosives. It is said that in the Panther Creek valley alone a new contract for explosives would result in an increased cost to the miners of $100,000 a year.

SILK WORKERS GET RAISE

Six Concerns in Easton Increase Up to Ten Per Cent.

Easton, Pa., May 5.—The Simon Silk company, has granted a nine-hour day and an increase of ten per cent to its 1200 employees.

The action of the company averts a strike, as the employees had made demands.

The Haycock-Cronmeyer Silk company announced it had granted its 700 employees a nine-hour day and an increase in wages.

The Northampton Silk company, with two mills here, also granted its 300 employees a nine-hour day and an increase in wages.

The Robbins Silk company also granted its 100 employees a nine-hour day and an increase in wages.

MEXICAN AGREEMENT TO GO THROUGH

Wilson Approves Proposition For Pursuit of Villa.

Washington, May 5.—The American government is ready to accept in its main points the agreement for the future pursuit of Francisco Villa and his bandits drawn up by General Alvaro Obregon, the Carranza minister of war, and General Hugh L. Scott, representing the United States.

This was decided at a conference between President Wilson and Secretary of War Baker.

Formal announcement of the position of the United States will not be given out until General Carranza has had opportunity to pass on the report submitted to him by General Obregon. When that is done, another conference between General Obregon and General Scott will be held on the border, and the negotiations formally will be concluded.

While no official information has been received from General Carranza officials take it for granted that General Obregon would not have made an agreement which would not have been acceptable to his chief.

The agreement provides for the cooperation of American and Carranza troops in clearing northern Mexico of bandits. Mexican railroads will be utilized for the transportation of supplies for the American troops. While no time limit is set for the withdrawal of the American troops from Mexico this will be done as soon as there are definite indications that American border towns are no longer in danger of raids.

SLIGHTED M'ADOO

His Reception at Trinidad Brings an Apology From British Envoy.

Washington, May 5.—Colonel Roosevelt's reception at Trinidad during his recent West Indian trip, quite eclipsed that arranged for Secretary McAdoo, who came along a little later.

So said the British ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, who paid a visit to President Wilson and expressed regret that through a misunderstanding among the local officials the secretary of the treasury had not been received with ceremony appropriate to his position.

British officials learned to their amazement that the governor of Trinidad had outdone himself to make a demonstration for Colonel Roosevelt, but apparently was little impressed with the coming of Secretary McAdoo, who was returning from the meeting of the Pan-American high commission at Buenos Aires.

The ambassador's explanation closes the incident, if it was one.

ANTI-WAR LETTERS FOLLOWS TELEGRAMS

Notes Pour in Upon Members of Congress.

Washington, May 5.—Printed form letters protesting against any step which may lead to war with Germany began pouring in by the thousands upon members of congress as the sequel to the telegraph propaganda which swamped the capital and the telegraph companies last week.

Even the names of the congressmen were printed on the card paper, and everything gave evidence the letters had been prepared by thousands and required only written signatures.

Senator Hastings, who attacked the propaganda in the senate and conferred with President Wilson to find if there was not some way by which the department of justice could uncover its source, received letters which, he said, added evidence to his charge that the American embargo conference was behind the movement.

LORIMER ACQUITTED

Former U. S. Senator Not Guilty of Conspiracy to Wreck Bank.

Chicago, May 5.—William Lorimer, former United States senator, was acquitted by a jury of the charge of conspiracy to wreck the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank while president of that institution. The jury was out a little more than six hours.

The jury in its verdict held that Lorimer had no part in any violation of the banking laws in connection with the career of the La Salle street bank or of the criminal laws in the bank's failure, and that he had no knowledge of such violations.

On October 22, 1914, two years after the La Salle street bank was converted from a national to a state institution, William Lorimer, C. B. Munday, H. W. Huttig and a number of officers and employees of the parent bank and its subsidiaries were indicted by the Cook county grand jury, three separate indictments being returned against Lorimer, Munday and Huttig.

HEART DISEASE A CHILD MENACE

New Problem Presented to Those Who Preserve Health.

TUBERCULOSIS DECREASING

Another Enemy Creeps Up Behind as Great Battle is Being Won—Heart Trouble Leaves Child Handicapped For Life—Home Care Better Than Hospitals For Such Cases.

With heart disease spreading as tuberculosis is being curbed physicians and social workers are planning preventive work among children to cope with the rising death rate. An article on this menace and what experimental work has shown to be desirable to ward curbing it as prepared for the Survey, an organization whose purpose is to investigate the facts of living and working conditions and to suggest means for social advance, is as follows:

Apparently while we have been fighting one enemy face to face another has stolen upon us from behind. New York has reduced her deaths from tuberculosis from 421 per hundred thousand in 1870 to 169 in 1914, but during the same time her deaths from heart disease have increased from 74 to 169.

Repeated In Other Cities.
The experience of New York is repeated in other cities. In Worcester, Mass., no less than 21.5 per cent of all deaths in the industrial population are caused by organic heart disease; 15.2 per cent is the proportion for the whole population of that city.

The situation, or, rather, the realization, has come upon us suddenly, and we are not equipped to deal with heart disease as we are with tuberculosis. Yet it is clear that we shall have to cope with it and devote to it the same study and the same persistent effort to get at underlying causes as we have given to tuberculosis ever since the eighties.

Several articles recently written for medical journals show how similar are the methods needed for the prevention and cure of heart disease to those we are familiar with the case of tuberculosis. In both it is in childhood that preventive work is most needed; in both the symptoms are slight and latent, and the treatment must be prolonged and persisted in after all signs of real trouble have disappeared. Both depend greatly upon environment for cure, and in both home care is beginning to take the place of institutional care.

Leave Child Handicapped.
Both leave the child handicapped and needing vocational training in some occupation which will not make too great demands on his strength.

The Massachusetts General hospital, Boston, has been making an interesting experiment in the home care of children with heart disease and with diseases which threaten the heart, such as chorea and rheumatism. At first these children were kept in the hospital for weeks and even months, but the results were discouraging. When they went home not only improved, but usually looking in the best of health, it was impossible to make the parents believe that the greatest care was still necessary. So releases came, and the children returned to the clinic sometimes in a worse condition than before.

The physicians realized that "heart disease is a social disease and must be treated socially. The child and his family must be educated, his environment must be altered and adapted to his limitations, and he must be kept under supervision for a long period, not merely until he has recovered from the acute symptoms."

Home Care Best.
So in 1911 a social worker was secured to supervise the home treatment of these children. The results have been so gratifying that home care has been substituted for hospital care for all but the acutely sick.

There is not nearly so much danger of relapse if the child has been in his own home from the beginning and his parents have had the care of him during his sickness and have gone through the long, tedious process of nursing him back to health. There is no need of readjusting him to his old environment, and there is much less difficulty in adjusting the environment when he is really ill than when he is apparently well. When the child is manifestly unfit, boarding the rest of the family has been a real hardship, and sending him to an orphanage is a last resort.

INDUSTRIES ORGANIZE

Adams County in Third District for Preparedness Campaign.

At a meeting of the State directors of the organization for Industrial Preparedness, this week, it was decided to divide the state into nine districts and appoint representative committees of five members each for each district.

In the district of which Adams county is a part, are Lancaster, Lebanon, Dauphin, York, Franklin, Cumberland, Perry, Juniata, Mifflin and Fulton counties.

Pennsylvania being one of the largest, if not the largest, war munition manufacturing state in the Union is the reason given by the directors for the "sub-divisions in the Commonwealth being made. Another object also is to get the reports as accurately and promptly as possible.

The plans of the Pennsylvania directors are to be carried out with little or practically no expense. Volunteers will do most of the work, and members of the great engineering societies will devote their time and energy to the project. The work is to be put on an "America First" basis, and patriotism will play a large part in the collection of the statistics in this state.

WILL MAKE INSPECTION

United States to Help Solve the Fishway Problem.

The state department of fisheries Thursday gave out a statement that in a few days an investigation would be made at the McCall's Ferry dam in the Susquehanna river, and that this time the survey would be made not only by the state engineers but that the United States bureau of fisheries has agreed to send its engineers to help solve the problem. A conference to fix the date for the inspection and survey will be held in a day or two, when Nathan Buller, state commissioner of fisheries, will meet the United States authorities.

It was given out at Mr. Buller's office that on account of the fast disappearance of the shad, the department found it advisable to go the limit in trying to solve the problem, and it believes that it can be done.

WON FROM BUCKNELL

Old Rivals Taken into Camp in the Lucky Seventh.

Plenty of excitement attended Gettysburg's 3-2 victory over Bucknell on Nixon Field Thursday afternoon. No scoring was done until the seventh when a hit, a stolen base and a hit gave Bucknell their first tally.

In Gettysburg's half Peale, who had been pitching excellent ball, weakened and the orange and blue got busy. Mahaffie hit safely, Motter got a pass, and all were safe when Eves bunted, Levine scored Mahaffie on a sacrifice fly, Sheffer was passed and the bases were full again. Motter and Eves tallied when Hoar hit to Elliott who threw high to the plate and Baldt dropped the throw. Cockill replaced Peale, then, and there was no further scoring for Gettysburg.

In the ninth Elliott hit for three bases and scored on Miller's out at first. Hoar pitched a very heady game and had faultless support.

AFTER MANY YEARS

Crawled up Chimney and Escaped from Wall of Gettysburg Jail.

John Toms, who escaped from the Adams County jail several years ago, and has been at large ever since, has been caught by Sheriff Long, of Washington county, Md., who wanted him on a charge of breaking into a store near Hagerstown. Toms, it will be recalled, was in the local jail under the name of Lee. He made his escape by crawling up the outside of an old chimney onto the roof, and then to the jail wall, dropping down into the yard at the Wible home and making good his escape.

He and his brother are said to have been living in Maryland recently under the name of Snyder. Both were caught by Sheriff Long. They both bear unenviable reputations. At the time of Toms' escape here he was alleged to have stolen about 700 chickens in two weeks' time.

At the abandoned Toms' home there were found by the officers many batteries for automobiles, great quantities of merchandise including cloth for men's suits, gingham, fancy table covers and many other things. All this plunder was left there and the matter was put in the hands of Sheriff Stoner, of Carroll County.

IF YOU WERE PRESIDENT, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

Would you plunge the country into War? Would you sacrifice young men as food for cannon? Would you make wives widows? Would you make children orphans? Would you be responsible for a National Debt as the result of War, that could not be met for generations to come?

Or would you do as President Wilson has done: Preserve the rights of American citizenship wherever it may be; use every endeavor to keep the country at peace, which up to this time he has been successful in doing, and to keep the country enjoying an era of prosperity which it now has, greater than ever before in its history?

Mr. Brodbeck, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Representative in Congress, as a member of Congress, and he only served one term when it is always customary to return a Congressman, helped to enact the laws that have prevented financial panics; that have helped place the country on a basis to enjoy the prosperity that it now has.

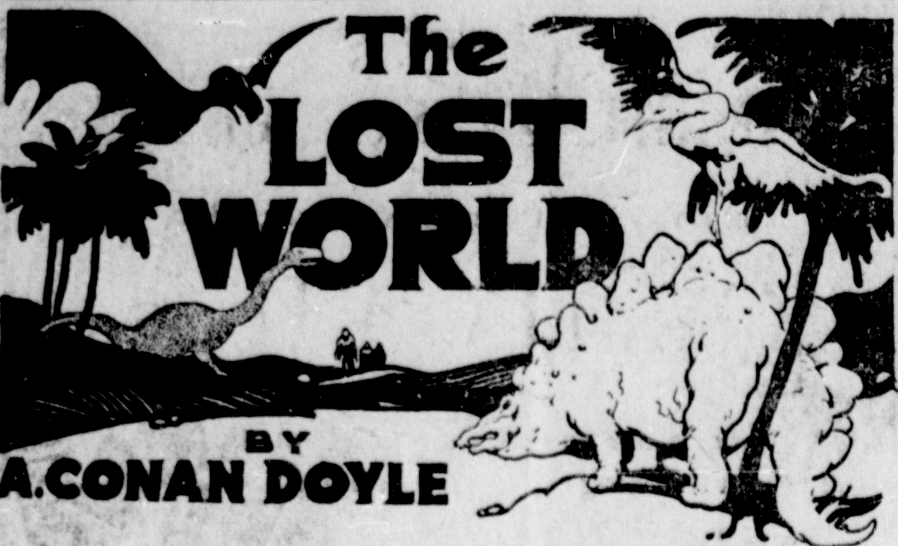

As a member of the 63rd Congress Mr. Brodbeck always made it a point not only to vote in the interests of the Country, but in the interest of the District which he represents, this will do it again. He has demonstrated his absolute sincerity of purpose in standing by the President; he has demonstrated that he believes in looking after your interests from the fact that during the lengthy sessions of the 63rd Congress he made it a point to be in Washington attending to your business.

If you believe in standing by the President; if you believe in recognizing those who have stood by the President; if you wish to show your appreciation for their services, go to the Primary on May 16th and vote not only for Woodrow Wilson as the Democratic nominee for President, but also for Andrew R. Brodbeck for Representative in Congress. It is important that you should do this, not only for the Country's sake, but for your sake also.

CHAPTER III.

"It's Just the Very Biggest Thing in the World."

HARDLY was it shut when Mrs. Challenger darted out from the dining room. The small woman was in a furious temper. She barred her husband's way like an enraged chicken in front of a bulldog. It was evident that she had seen my exit, but had not observed my return.

"You brute, George!" she screamed. "You've hurt that nice young man." He jerked backward with his thumb. "Here he is, safe and sound behind me."

She was confused, but not unduly so. "I am so sorry. I didn't see you."

"Assure you, madam, that it is all right."

"He has marked your poor face! Oh, George, what a brute you are! Nothing but scandals from one end of the week to the other. Every one hating and making fun of you. You've finished my patience. This ends it!"

"Dirty linen," he rumbled.

"It's not a secret," she cried. "Do you suppose that the whole street—the whole of London, for that matter—get away, Austin. We don't want you here. Do you suppose they don't all talk about you? Where is your dignity? You a man who should have been regius professor at a great university with a thousand students all revering you! Where is your dignity, George?"

"How about yours, my dear?"

"You try me too much. A ruffian, a common bawling ruffian—that's what you have become."

"Be good, Jessie."

"A roaring, raging bully!"

"That's done it! Stool of penance!" said he.

To my amazement, he stooped, picked her up and placed her sitting upon a high pedestal of black marble in the angle of the hall. It was at least seven feet high and so thin that she could hardly balance upon it. A more absurd object than she presented coked up there with her face convulsed with anger, her feet dangling and her body rigid for fear of an upset, I could not imagine.

"Let me down!" she wailed.

"Say please!"

"You brute, George! Let me down this instant!"

"Come into the study, Mr. Malone."

"Really, sir?" said I, looking at the lady.

"Here's Mr. Malone pleading for you, Jessie. Say please and down you come."

"Oh, you brute! Please, please!"

He took her down as if she had been a canary.

"You must behave yourself, dear. Mr. Malone is a press man. He will have it all in his rag tomorrow and sell an extra dozen among our neighbors. 'Strange Story of High Life'—you felt fairly high on that pedestal, did you not? Then a subtitle, 'Glimpse of a Singular Menage'! He's a real feeder, is Mr. Malone, a cartoon artist, like all of his kind—porous ex grege diaboli—a swine from the devil's herd. That's it, Malone—what?"

"You are really intolerable!" said I hoody.

He belowered with laughter.

"We shall have a coalition presently," he boomed, looking from his wife to me and putting out his enormous chest. Then, suddenly altering his tone, "Excuse this frivolous family badinage, Mr. Malone. I called you back for some more serious purpose than to mix you up with our little domestic pleasantries. Run away, little woman and don't fret!" He placed a huge hand upon each of her shoulders.

"All that you say is perfectly true. I should be a better man if I did what you advise, but I shouldn't be quite George Edward Challenger. There are plenty of better men, my dear, but only one G. E. C. So make the best of him."

He suddenly gave her a resounding kiss, which embarrassed me even more than his violence had done. "Now, Mr. Malone," he continued, with a great accession of dignity, "this way, if you please."

We re-entered the room which we had left so tumultuously ten minutes before.

The professor closed the door carefully behind us, motioned me into an arm-chair and pushed a cigar box under my nose.

"Real San Juan Colorado," he said. "Excitable people like you are the better for narcotics. Heavens, don't bite it! Out, and out with reverence. Now lean back and listen attentively to whatever I may care to say to you. If any remark should occur to you you can reserve it for some more opportune time."

"First of all, as to your return to my house after your most justifiable expulsion," he protruded his beard and stared at me as one who challenges and invites contradiction—"after, as I say, your well merited expulsion. The reason lay in your answer to that most efficacious policeman, in which I seemed to discern some glimmering of good feeling upon your part—more, at any rate, than I am accustomed to as associate with your profession."

"Let me down!" she wailed.

All this he boomed forth like a professor addressing his class. He had swung around his revolving chair so as to face me, and he sat all puffed out like an enormous bullfrog, his head and back and his eyes half covered by supercilious lids. Now he suddenly turned himself sideways, and all I could see of him was tangled hair with a red, protruding ear. He was scratching about among the litter of papers upon his desk. He faced me presently with what looked like a very tattered sketchbook in his hand.

"I am going to talk to you about South America," said he. "No comments, if you please. First of all, I wish you to understand that nothing I tell you now is to be repeated in any public way unless you have my express permission. That permission will in all human probability never be given. Is that clear?"

"It is very hard," said I. "Surely a judicious account!"

He replaced the notebook upon the table.

"That ends it," said he. "I wish you a very good morning."

"No, no!" I cried. "I submit to any conditions. So far as I can see, I have no choice."

"None in the world," said he. "Well, then, I promise."

"Word of honor?"

He looked at me with doubt in his insolent eyes.

"After all, what do I know about your honor?" said he.

"Upon my word, sir," I cried angrily, "you take very great liberties! I have never been so insulted in my life."

He seemed more interested than annoyed at my outbreak.

"Round headed," he muttered. "Brachycephalic, gray eyed, black haired, with suggestion of the negroid Celtic, I presume?"

"I am an Irishman, sir."

"Irish Irish?"

"Yes, sir."

"That, of course, explains it. Let me see, you have given me your promise that my confidence will be respected? That confidence, I may say, will be far from complete. But I am prepared to give you a few indications which will be of interest. In the first place, you are probably aware that two years ago I made a journey to South America, one which will be classical in the scientific history of the world. The object of my journey was to verify some conclusions of Wallace and of Bates, which could only be done by observing their reported facts under the same conditions in which they had themselves noted them. If my expedition had no other results it would still have been noteworthy, but a curious incident occurred to me while there which opened up an entirely fresh line of inquiry."

"You are aware—or probably, in this half educated age, you are not aware—that the country round some parts of the Amazon is still only partially explored and that a great number of tributaries, some of them entirely uncharted, run into the main river. It was my business to visit this little known back country and to examine its fauna, which furnished me with the materials for several chapters for that great and monumental work upon zoology which will be my life's justification. I was returning, my work accomplished, when I had occasion to spend a night at a small Indian village at a point where a certain tributary—the name and position of which I withhold—opens into the main river. The natives were Cucania Indians, an amiable but degraded race, with mental powers hardly superior to the average Londoner. I had effected some cures among them, upon the way up the river and had impressed them considerably with my personality, so that I was not surprised to find myself eagerly awaited upon my return. I gathered from their signs that some one had urgent need of my medical services, and I followed the chief to one of his huts. When I entered I found that the sufferer to whose aid I had been summoned had that instant expired. He was, to my surprise, no Indian, but a white man. Indeed, I may say a very white man, for he was flaxen haired and had some characteristics of an albino. He was clad in rags, was very emaciated and bore every trace of prolonged hardship. So far as I could understand the account of the natives he was a complete stranger to them and had come upon their village through the woods alone and in the last stage of exhaustion.

"The man's knapsack lay beside the couch, and I examined the contents. His name was written upon a tab with ink—Maple White, Lake avenue, Detroit, Mich."

"From the contents of the knapsack it was evident that this man had been an artist and poet in search of effects. There were scraps of verse. I do not profess to be a judge of such things, but they appeared to me to be singularly wanting in merit."

"I was turning away from him when I observed that something projected from the front of his ragged jacket. It was this sketchbook, which was as dilapidated then as you see it now. Indeed, I can assure you that a first folio of Shakespeare could not be treated with greater reverence than this relic has been since it came into my possession. I handed it to you now, and I ask you to take it page by page and to examine the contents."

He helped himself to a cigar and leaned back with a fiercely critical pair of eyes, taking note of the effect which this document would produce.

I had opened the volume with some expectation of a revelation, though of what nature I could not imagine. The first page was disappointing, however, as it contained nothing but the picture of a very fat man in a pea jacket, with the legend, "Jimmy Colver on the Mall Boat," written beneath it. There followed several pages which were filled with small sketches of Indians and their ways. Then came a picture of a cheerful and corpulent ecclesiastic in a shovel hat, sitting opposite a very thin European, and the inscription, "Lunch With Fra Cristoforo at Rosario." Studies of women and babies accounted for several more pages, and then there was an unbroken series of animal drawings with such explanations as "Manatee Upon Sandbank," "Turtles and Their Eggs," "Black Ajouti Under a Miriri Palm," the matter disclosing some sort of piglike animal, and finally came a double page of studies of long snouted and very unpleasant saurians. "I could make nothing of it and said so to the professor."

"Surely these are only crocodiles?"

"Alligators! Alligators! There is hardly such a thing as a true crocodile in South America. The distinction between them—"

"I meant that I could see nothing unusual—nothing to justify what you have said."

He smiled serenely.

"Try the next page," said he.

I was still unable to sympathize. It was a full page sketch of a landscape roughly tinted in color, the kind of painting which an open air artist takes as a guide to a future more elaborate effort. There was a pale green foreground of feathery vegetation, which sloped upward and ended in a line of cliffs dark red in color and curiously ribbed like some basaltic formations which I have seen.

"Well?" he asked.

"It is no doubt a curious formation," said I, "but I am not geologist enough to say that it is wonderful."

"Wonderful!" he repeated. "It is unique. It is incredible. No one on earth has ever dreamed of such a possibility. Now the next."

I turned it over and gave an exclamation of surprise. There was a full page picture of the most extraordinary creature that I had ever seen. It was the wild dream of an opium smoker, a vision of delirium. The head was like that of a bat, the body that of a bloated lizard, the trailing tail was furnished with upward turned spikes, and the curved back was edged with a high serrated fringe which looked like a dozen cocks' wattle placed behind each other. In front of this creature was an absurd manikin or dwarf in human form, who stood staring at it.

MAY COMPROMISE PHILIPPINE BILL

Many Democrats Oppose the Freedom Measure.

CHURCH INFLUENCE IS FELT

Fear That if United States Liberates the Islands Peculiar Religion of Japanese Will Be Instilled There. Senators See a Moral Obligation on Nation's Part to Hold On.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, May 5.—[Special.]—Philippine independence having received a severe check by the opposition of thirty-five Democrats in caucus and the promise of several more who did not attend, those who favor action at the present time are beginning to ask what they should do.

The probabilities are that some sort of an arrangement will be made by which a promise of independence will be given, and the bill to which the independence measure was attached in the senate can then be passed.

Church Influence.

Church influence was important in checking the movement toward Philippine independence. In this matter the Catholic church took the most prominent part, although other churches also used influence to have the United States retain control of the islands.

The Catholic prelates believe that a great work is being done by their church in the Philippines, and the fear is expressed that if the United States should lose control and Japan should take the islands the peculiar religion of Japan might be imposed upon the people of the islands.

A Moral Obligation.

Dozens of men, Republicans as well as Democrats, have expressed the desire to be rid of the Philippines, but at the same time they say that there is a moral obligation on the part of the United States to maintain control and to educate and lead the people of the islands until they are capable of managing their own affairs. When it comes to giving the Philippines independence or a measure of independence it is also found that our people must either "secede" or retain control.

As to Gag Rules.

Ever since Tom Reed in the Fifty-first congress provided for a special order, generally known as "gag rule," both parties have used it in such drastic manner as was necessary to accomplish their purposes. It is idle for one party or the other to claim that either one is going further and doing worse, for each has gone as far as is necessary at all times. When this matter was under discussion recently Lenroot of Wisconsin was vigorously rebuking the Democrats for the gag rule proposition, which brought out the statement from Pat Harrison of Mississippi that "the Republicans when in power used the gag rule as often as we have."

"And you remember what happened to them?" replied Lenroot.

And, while that sounded pretty well, it must be acknowledged that it was not because of any procedure in congress that the Republicans were defeated in 1910 and 1912.

Hampton and Pegasus.

Something has got to be done with J. Hampton Moore, who represents a Philadelphia district. He has broken out into poetry in a way that is almost shocking. Not long ago he turned loose seven stanzas, all about Sloan of Nebraska, Hampton said that he dashed off the verses in the early morning, having risen with the sun for that purpose.

Sloan said that if this latest effusion of Moore had been written sooner he would have had Moore's name included in the fifty immortals which were provided for in a bill which recently passed the house. "He is the veritable little early riper poet of the Delaware," was one of Sloan's remarks during the discussion.

A Well Deserved Tribute.

One day there was a discussion in the senate which related to western affairs. Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire took a hand, saying he desired to do what the western men wanted. A little later Senator Mark Smith of Arizona, who off and on for more than thirty years has represented his state and territory in both houses of congress, said:

"I take pleasure now and have taken pleasure ever since I have been in public life in paying what slight tribute I could, and I do it from my heart, to the broad generosity that the senator from New Hampshire has shown in the fight which has been made by the western states for a broader recognition by the federal government. I want that senator to feel that when he shall have quit a busy career in public life, when he shall be known no longer among us here, there will be grateful words everywhere in the west for his services to them and that those people will pay a tribute of their intense admiration—aye, of their affection—for the honored senator who never once in all our struggles has abandoned our cause, but who has often stood alone among all New England senators in advocacy of justice to the people of the western states."

It is an interesting fact that whenever Senator Gallinger has found out what the western people really wanted he has supported it with great vigor.

So many glass eyes and bald heads among brides sent from Japan to poor Jap bachelors in the United States, the Tokyo authorities have taken steps against the "picture bride" marriage.

(Medical Advertising) HOW TO GET STRONG

A Simple Remedy

Whatever the cause, we want to say to every person who needs strength, you need Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, as it is the most efficient strength creator we have in our store. Here is proof from Dorchester, Mass.:

"I don't know what we would do without Vinol in our family. I was weak, nervous and run-down as the result of an operation, and Vinol restored my strength. Then Grandmother had a nervous breakdown, and Vinol built her up and restored her health and strength after everything else had failed. We have used Vinol for 13 years in our family, and would not be without it in the house." Myrtle L. Healy, Dorchester, Mass.

We believe in Vinol because we know it is a great strength creator—due to the extractive medicinal elements of fresh cod livers, without oil, combined with peptonate of iron and beef peptone, all dissolved in a pure medicinal wine, so we always return the purchase money if Vinol fails to benefit those who buy it. SAYS WE BECOME CRANKS ON HOT WATER DRINKING

Hopes every man and woman adopts this splendid morning habit

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness.

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it; as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

J. M. SULLIVAN IN BRITISH JAIL

Ex-Minister to Domingo Arrested in Dublin.

IS TAKEN TO LONDON

Former U. S. Envoy is Held for Complicity in Irish Revolt—Executions Arouse Bitter Feelings.

London, May 5.—James Mark Sullivan, of New York, formerly American minister to Santo Domingo, has been arrested in Dublin on the charge of complicity in the revolution in Ireland. Sullivan has been brought to London and probably will be placed on trial here.

Bitter feeling has been aroused in some quarters by the summary court-martials and executions of Patrick Henry Pearse, self-proclaimed "president" of Ireland, and other leaders who took an active part in the Sinn Féin uprising, although there is a strong opinion both in and out of official circles that stern measures were necessary to prevent fresh uprisings. It has been definitely established that three, and not four, men were executed. Those besides Pearse were Thomas MacDonagh and Thomas J. Clark, James Connolly, military commander of the insurgents, at first reported executed, is in prison wounded. The confusion arose from the ambiguous wording of the announcement of the executions made by Premier Asquith yesterday.

A crowd flocked to the house of commons expecting the premier to announce the execution of other revolutionist chiefs. The premier said Wednesday that Sir Roger Casement would be brought to trial at the earliest possible moment and reports were current that the Irish knight, who was arrested while trying to land arms on the Irish coast, might be placed on trial before Sunday.

The Telegraph learns that Sir Roger Casement, who is in the Tower, will be tried in London, that the charge against him will be high treason and that three judges will sit on his case. Sir Roger has been at work upon a patriotic address which he hopes to deliver in court, but it is said he will have no chance for oratory. It is also taken for granted that his trial will be held in camera.

The premier promised the house of commons that he would make a statement on the causes of the revolt next week.

The premier said it was not desirable to say anything more at the moment than that all appropriate steps were being taken to deal with the revolt and those responsible for it. Asked whether the revolutionists would be tried by court-martial or by a civil tribunal, the premier said he had never suggested that the inquiry might be judicial.

Copies of a secret proclamation issued by James Connolly, calling upon Irishmen to enlist, have been found. These evidently were circulated throughout the counties in southeastern and western Ireland before the revolt in Dublin, April 24. The total number of Irish prisoners in the hands of the military authorities is estimated at from 1500 to 2000.

John Redmond, leader of the Irish parliament party, begged the government to be lenient with the great mass of those involved in the revolt.

ARREST ASTOUNDS CAPITAL

Washington Startled Over Charges Against Sullivan.

Washington, May 5.—The reported arrest of James M. Sullivan, former minister to Santo Domingo, for complicity in the Irish uprising, caused a profound sensation in official circles.

Sullivan is an American citizen and this is the first arrest made of an American in any belligerent country for treason against the country in which he was a temporary resident. It was said in official circles that every protection will be afforded to him as an American, but that it will be impossible to say whether a demand can be made for his release until the facts are known.

Fifteen Killed in Food Riots.

The Hague, May 5.—Fifteen persons were killed in food riots in Budapest on Sunday, according to private advices received here. Two hundred arrests were made. Crowds of old men and women surrounded the Burgomaster's residence, shouting "Give us bread."

A Nest Of Spies

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Captain Robert Edgerton of the staff of a general commanding the right wing of the British troops in France was directed to take an important communication to the general commanding the left wing of the same army. It was contained in a fat envelope and must be carried in the captain's side coat pocket.

Edgerton took with him an orderly, an Irishman named Michael Faraday, recommended by his company commander for possessing a cool head. Mike, like a good soldier who knew his place, rode forty paces to the rear whenever there was no especial danger.

The two zigzagged along, sometimes in advance of the British line, sometimes in the rear. At one moment they would be riding through shot and shell, at another would be where there was all the quiet of a rural cemetery. The captain had been told that there was no need for hurry; all that was expected of him was to get the message through during the day. At noon he stopped at a house and asked for some dinner. The occupant claimed to be a Frenchman, but Edgerton could not make out exactly what was his native nationality. At any rate, he spoke a kind of French to which the captain was not used. The day was warm, the roads dusty, and the officer, who was an English gentleman and could not brook dirt, asked to be shown a place where he could wash his face and hands.

His host showed him to a room on the second floor, where the captain took off his uniform coat and plunged his face into a basin of water. When he had finished his host stood with his coat in his hands ready to help him put it on. The man had already brushed off the dust, doing the work while the captain's face and eyes were covered either with water or a towel. And this was no brief time, for if there is one thing about which an Englishman is particular it is his ablutions.

As soon as Edgerton had buttoned his coat he put his hand to his breast to feel if the message was still there and, feeling its bulk, complacently descended to the dinner table. A woman had cooked the meal, but she said nothing to the captain, who ate while the others served him. The man talked a good deal about the war, was very bitter against the Germans and hoped they would soon be driven from French territory. He was continually going out to the kitchen for dishes, and on one of these exits Edgerton heard him speak a few words to the woman.

Now, Edgerton was a Cambridge professor of languages. The words spoken were Persian. They were said in a tone so low that he could hear only a few of them. These were "Be ready to"--- A vague feeling that something was wrong about the couple seized upon Edgerton, and he involuntarily put his hand to his breast to see that his dispatch was there. Feeling its bulk he was again satisfied. Before leaving he offered to pay for his dinner, but the man was too good a patriot to take anything.

Meanwhile, the orderly remained without, munching a piece of bread and meat the woman had given him. As soon as the captain appeared Mike led his horse to him. Edgerton mounted, and the two started on their journey. They had not gone far before Mike called from the rear:

"Captain!"

"Well?" turning in his saddle.

"Have ye the dispatch?"

"Certainly I have. Why do you ask?"

"Thim's not Frenchies; they're Turks or somethin' o' the like."

Edgerton unbuttoned his coat, took out what he had been supposing to be his dispatch to find that it was a newspaper folded to the shape of the package with which he had started on his mission. He was thunderstruck. Turning, without a word he rode back to the house he had just left. It was deserted.

Mike, who had meanwhile caught sight of something flitting through a wood, gave chase and returned with the woman. She had carried the dispatch, dropped it, and Mike had his grip on it.

"Ride for the nearest troops!" cried Edgerton, "and bring them. We're stepped into a nest of spies!"

The captain remained where he was, guarding the woman, and in a few minutes Mike returned with a small troop of cavaliers. They beat the bushes and captured the man.

Edgerton narrated what had occurred to the officer in command, who told him that information had been going to the enemy from some source and they had been unable to locate it. The house was carefully examined, and under it was found a telephone machine, from which a wire ran underground to a hill occupied by the enemy.

Edgerton, having given his testimony, rode on, delivered his message, and when he returned on passing the house where he had dined he found it razed. The occupants had both been shot. As Edgerton rode on he mused aloud:

"I wonder how they got that dispatch without my knowing it?"

"What were ye doin' all the time, captain?"

Edgerton told him how he had washed and dried his face.

"Faith, captain," said Mike, "ye can't see with your eyes full of water or through a towel."

WARSHIPS TO BE WORLD'S BIGGEST

General Board Plans For 36,000 Tons Displacement.

WILL CARRY 16-INCH GUNS.

Tentative Plans Have Been Drawn and Must Be Approved by Congress. Navy Department to Insist That New Battle Cruisers Make Speed of at Least Thirty-five Knots.

If the plans of the general board are followed out the new battleships to be authorized at this session of congress will be the largest and most powerful afloat and will be equipped with the biggest caliber armament. Tentative plans drawn for their construction by the naval authorities put their displacement at 36,000 tons and their armament ten sixteen-inch guns.

The recommendation for ten sixteen-inch rifles comes direct from the general board and has the indorsement of many ordnance officers, although there is a difference of opinion in naval circles as to whether sixteen inch or fourteen inch guns should prevail. The same arguments caused a division of opinion among naval authorities when it was proposed to use fourteen inch instead of twelve inch guns.

The tentative plans for battleships, battle cruisers, destroyers, submarines, gunboats, a hospital ship and a fuel ship have been drawn in anticipation of the authorization of these various types of vessels.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels said that the most interest was centered in the battleships and battle cruisers, with expert opinion about equally divided as to which of these types would be of the greatest value for the efficiency of the fleet.

Cruisers' Plans Delayed.

Detailed plans for the battle cruisers have not yet been completed at the navy department, it was explained, as the design for these ships is entirely new in the United States navy. It is already calculated, however, that the speed of these vessels must not be under thirty-five knots.

It is believed at the navy department that congress will be disposed toward the smaller type of coastal submarine in preference to the fleet type. The theory followed by the supporters of this view is that it is better to await the results of the trial of the Schley and the two sister ships before authorizing any more fleet submarines of the largest displacement.

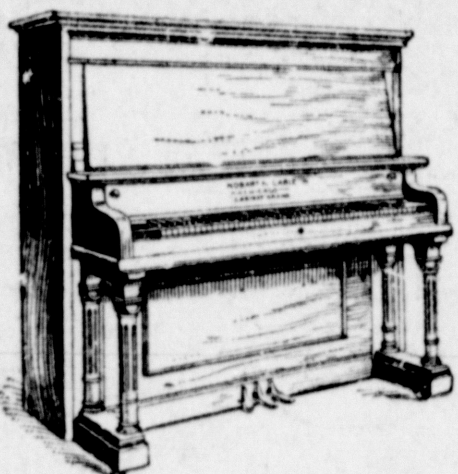

The characteristics of the new destroyers included in the 1917 program probably will be about the same in appearance as the destroyers designed last year, with some minor improvements and a slight increase in speed.

The designs for the gunboats contemplate a vessel of the improved Sacramento type, which has given much satisfaction and which seems in its 1,425 tons displacement to well serve the purposes of the navy for this type of craft. The fuel ship will probably be a duplicate of the Kanawha. The hospital ship will be designed after recommendations submitted by the bureau of medicine and surgery and will have the most advanced facilities for caring for the sick and wounded.

Marked Resemblance.

"Before entering a pond or stream a moccasin or other water snake fills himself with wind and"--- helpfully began Professor Fate.

"The average Hon. does exactly the same before he enters the legislature," interrupted the old codger. "The said wind keeps him afloat on the surface of things for a short time, but when it is finally expelled he either sinks to the bottom or gets out."--Kansas City Star.
